

April 5, 2006

Mr Gruenberg,

Wal-Mart has already driven out far too many local small businesses in America on the backs of cheap labor in China--at the expense of American workers. It is an unethical company far too powerful already, and it is unwise to allow such a concentration of power in a free nation such as ours.

Granting such power to a company like this is not only bad for America, but extremely dangerous to our economy. The FDIC board members must attend such a critical hearing as this and ask very direct questions for the working class of America. As Americans, we need your protection.

Most Sincerely,

Jill Ransom